F ANY AND ALL of our former "Sales" in this character of goods. The reason for this was easily understood by the many people who took time—during the past week—to enter our store and pass along any counter. They could not help but notice the many price tickets and the endless variety of goods displayed; neither could they help it if they purchased many articles they never thought of buying until seeing the exceptional values; they could not resist.

Tomorrow morning ushers in the second week of the Mill End Sale. And this week we will strive to give you even greater values than during the week just passed. New lots of goods just purchased, other lots taken from our ware-roams, which added to that already stacked on our counters, enables us to place before you a larger selection to choose from for

Mill End Prices on Shoes

Finding the Summer season well on its way toward the time when Summer ends and Fall begins, we commence to wonder where we will put the immense quantities of Fall and Winter Shoes we have been ordering for months past. We decided the best thing to do was to sacrifice some of our light-weight Summer goods, so as to give us the desired room. The items below are the result of that decision:
